LET NEVADA HAVE RESCUE CAR.

The terrible results of the Belmont disaster of last Thursday has emphasized one point more than anything else.

Nevada should have a rescue car stationed at some central point where it would be immediately available in the event of similar disasters. Human life is too precious for the expenditure of a few thousand dollars to stand in the way of proper safeguarding of life.

Those interested in Nevada and Nevada's miners should go to the Tonopah & Goldfield depot and go through the rescue car which United States Senator George S. Nixon caused the bureau of mines to send to Tonopah as soon as he heard of the disaster.

The car was stationed at Rock Springs, Wyo., and, before it could arrive here, the fire was practically out and all human life within the confines of the mine was conceded to be snuffed out. The good intent of Senator Nixon is not blameable for this, but the fact that the car with its oxygen tanks, fire helmets, thousands of feet of oxygen hose, cylinders for oxygen and fowl air respirators, was so far distant that gas and smoke did their fatal work before the car could arrive.

With the wonderful scientific equipment carried in the car and the expert services of Sumner S. Smith, the rescue man in charge of the car, had it been on hand in time such as it would have been had it been stationed at some central Nevada point, bulkheads could have been broken down, air currents diverted, water thrown directly on the seat of the fire and a thousand and one things done to prevent the conditions which resulted in death.

There, the Bonanza suggests: let the state legislature, hitherto procrastinating, pass a memorial or resolution to congress asking for the establishment of a state rescue bureau in Nevada, at some central point, in charge of a recognized expert; let there be a rescue car, equipped as are those in Colorado, Utah, Montana and Wyoming placed here, and let there be a sufficient fund provided by either the state or bureau of mines so the maintenance may be assured and the highest degree of efficiency secured.

What the rescue car now here cost is problematical. It is sufficient to say, however, that, could the lives of the unfortunate victims of the Belmont disaster be restored, the people of Tonopah in five minutes would subscribe three times the first cost of the car and its equipment.

Why should not Nevada—that queen mining state of the world—be progressive and give her miners certainty of protection?

WHAT HAS NIXON DONE?

During the late campaign his opponent often asked the question: "What has Nixon ever done for the state of Nevada?" As the latest answer to state that, through Senator Nixon, the United States Bureau of Mines' rescue car is now in Tonopah, not, however, having arrived until too late to prove of any assistance in the disaster of last Thursday morning—but through no fault of Senator Nixon. Had a wire been sent to the senator upon the outbreak of the fire, the car would have been here within seventeen hours. While this also would have been too late, nevertheless it would have demonstrated the fact that the senator is working to the utmost of his ability for the state which he so ably represents.

No sooner had he seen the newspaper dispatches than he "hit the wires" and kept them hot until the car was enroute for the scene of the trouble. This should prove an ample answer to those "calamity howlers" who so strongly opposed the senator during the last campaign. "What has Nixon done for the state of Nevada?"

However, should this not appease those who contended that Nixon's opponent was the only fit man to represent us in Washington, it might be well to state that it was, and still is, a well known fact that Mr. Nixon is in close touch with the administration. That he is in a position to make requests of the administration that will be granted. And it is more probable that he will shortly secure for the state of Nevada a rescue car on the order of the one he sent here post-haste upon learning of the mine fire.

Further, it might be stated in answer to this all-important question that George S. Nixon is a heavy taxpayer in this state.

Anyway, Hasn't Nixon done a little for his state? Has he not done what others could not accomplish?

ONE GOOD DEED IN MANY.

The state legislature has made a record for itself in the line of procrastination, evasion, filibustering, and plays to the gallery until the decent people of Nevada, who put the members of the body in office are ready to retch and avow disapproval every time the name of the senate or assembly is mentioned. The divorce bill, one of the important state issues, seems in a fair way to be sidetracked, and so pressure can be brought against revision of the gambling law, Reno killed the gambling for the state and pauperized the southern counties of the state, yet Reno maintains one of the greatest hotbeds of vice and immorality in the world—worse even than Seattle's famous protected vice trust—and is satisfied to keep her brazen and infamous divorce colony before the eyes of the world while deprecating gambling.

However, a slight measure of forgiveness is due the state's lawmakers for the decency and fairness shown at last for the interest of the people by passing the weights and measures bill. Alleged graft bills, cinch bills, measures intended to gratify personal spite, have wended their tortuous way through the hopper of the legislature.

One decent and properly intended bill was placed before the solons, however, and—wonder of wonders—it passed. The weights and measures bill stands a fair chance of becoming a law regardless of the Reno lobby—regardless of the grafters and short-weight experts of the state who lobbied against it. Therefore there must be something good in the legislature, and the Bonanza is ready to concede that something may yet be accomplished—possibly—almost—maybe—but there are but a few days yet.

However, the passage of the weights and measures bill is one good thing and if that is all the legislature accomplishes—well, we can only hope that the next one will be composed of up-to-date, progressive men, anxious to do for the people of Nevada what they were elected for.

JUDGES AND THE RECALL.

Numbers of California judges have assured Governor Johnson of their belief in the wisdom and propriety of the policy that includes members of the judiciary among officials to be subject to the recall.

The governor quotes Judge Coffey as typically saying:

"I believe in the universal application of the recall. If the people are competent to elect judges in the first instance, they certainly should be competent to re-elect or recall them."

That is an argument to which no sufficient answer has been advanced. To hold that the people are competent to select and employ wisely and incompetently to recall and discharge is to hold that the people possess judgment and discretion only on the stated days designated by statutory enactment for regular elections. If they are able on one particular day of the year to choose a good judge from among many untested candidates for judicial office, certainly they should be able, at all times during the year, to determine after a trial of their judges whether any of them has become unfit to hold his office. The possession of one ability includes the possession of the other.

Not for the whole world would we insinuate that Pittsburg is the worst city, politically, in the country, but we do hold to the opinion that the average Pittsburg officeholder could give a Chicagoan some exceedingly valuable pointers on practical politics.

We are sorry to hear that the sunny south is so frost-bitten that an Eskimo would feel right at home there; but California can guarantee to produce fruit for all shortages which may result from this unfortunate condition of affairs.

In view of the popular belief that every firm has its "wicked partner," it is interesting to speculate upon the relative moral status of the principal members of the Morgan-Rockefeller combine.

If Russia should discover signs of British ownership in those documents seized in the Westinghouse offices we fear someone is going to be injured in the scramble to restore the property.

Emilio de Gogorza says it would be absurd to imagine a man really making love to a lady the way love is made to a lady in grand opera. It certainly would be.

The complaint from insurrecto sources that Uncle Sam is too diligent in keeping the peace on the Mexican border will hardly become of international importance.

A town in Utah has a Sapphire club. The men there should not be backward; let them come forward with their Ananias club, and so play even.

The Idaho senators are in the limelight on the question of the popular election of senators. It is a pity that they are at sword's point about it.

Professor Nash of the Harvard divinity school scores title-chasing American girls. Now give the money-grabbing foreigners a whack, "prof."

Perhaps after all it might not be an unqualified evil if some of the magazines really were put out of business by an increase in postal rates.

Woodrow Wilson, by his force, tenacity, and successful tactics, seems to be the coming democratic leader, if in fact he has not fully arrived.

The outcry in Washington about a great timber combine is simply an echo of Pinchot. There's no cause for alarm.

THE GIRL IN THE KIMONO TO BE HERE

The stage has a lot of sins to answer for. Perhaps as many of these will come under the head of musical comedy as anything else. If a vote were taken here on this question, it is a cinch this would be the judgment. But as they say about the girl with a curl on her forehead, when she is good she is very good, and when she is bad she is horrid; so may it be said of musical comedy. And glory be, here comes along one of the good kind, "The Girl in the Kimono," rollicking farce with music, which made the Ziegfeld theater, Chicago, a place of extraordinary public interest for over five months, is due here shortly to regale our drooping spirits, and kindle a new interest in regard to things theatrical. This farce is the work of Helen Bagg, the popular magazine contributor, and is one of those rare compounds of fun and music seldom met with by the eager theatergoers, in years and years of constant search. And it is pleasing to note, in this connection, that the success of the play does not rest on any vulgar compromise with the alleged low taste of the day. The specialties are delightful conceits in color and movement without the slightest offense to good taste, and the dialogue and songs are penetratingly funny without any drawback of smut.

Willie Danlay, of "The Honey Mooner" fame, is the principle comedian of the company, which numbers forty in all and will be individually the same as carried the Chicago production to remarkable success.

RED SOX WILL PLAY BASEBALL WITH RENO MEN

BOSTON AMERICANS WILL BE SEEN IN RENO ON MARCH 27—SPRING WORK.

RENO, Nev., Feb. 28.—On the 27th of March the Red Sox, the Boston club of the American Baseball league, will play a game of baseball in Reno with some local team.

The Red Sox left Chicago February 20 on a training trip preparatory to starting of the 1911 season, and will make their training headquarters at Redondo Beach, Cal., playing several California cities on different dates.

The later part of March the Red Sox will be divided into two teams, the southern and northern, and the teams will start back east, playing at different cities en route. The southern team will take the southern route back through Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The northern team will come direct through from Oakland on the Southern Pacific, playing games in Reno, Salt Lake, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Denver and other large cities on the route to Chicago.

The Boston American league baseball club is one of the strongest teams in the American league, and their coming here on March 27 will give the people of Reno a chance to see some of the best professional baseball players of the country in action.

WOMAN PAYS PENALTY OF WORLDLY SINS

DENIZEN OF UNDERWORLD IS DEAD AS A RESULT OF ALCOHOLISM.

One more unfortunate has gone to her rest as the result of an overindulgence in the "wine that cheers" and the "great red way." Last night Pearl Hart, an habituée of the underworld, paid the penalty of her sins, meeting death through alcoholism. The remains were removed to the morgue, where they will probably be held pending an investigation of the coroner's jury, early tomorrow morning.

In one of the "cribs" of the tenderloin district, shortly after 7 o'clock last night, the unfortunate woman breathed her last. Away from the surroundings of sympathetic friends and relatives, she departed this life in a haunt of crime, in which she chose to follow as her profession. Somewhere, in all probability, there is anxiously awaiting news of a loved one, gray-haired mother or father, possibly both, or even sister or brother. Perhaps they will learn that their "favorite" has crossed over the Great Beyond. Perhaps not. However, it may be better that the unfortunate, who has paid the price, be buried amid strangers and that those loving relatives continue to remember her as she "was."
